

The Songs of Christmas
Elizabeth's Song
Luke 1:39-45

Songwriters get their inspiration from their context, their life experiences, and their main concerns. They often sing about that which is most important to them. It makes sense that our faith is a singing faith, that we would sing about the God of the universe and His love for us.

1. Elizabeth's song _____ John's joy
2. Elizabeth's song _____ Elizabeth's joy
3. Elizabeth's song _____ Mary's joy

There is a reason that Christmas music is considered its own genre—Christmas is a big deal. We are wired to express our joy in song for the big deals of life. While we sing Christmas carols that resonate with us in our context, let's use them to point us back to the originals, the ones perfectly preserved in the Christmas narrative of Scripture.
