

A Case Study in the Value of One
John 1:40-42

Our world struggles with value. In addition to the senseless violence on the streets of our cities, our society cheers legislation that promotes abortion and euthanasia based on the perceived value or potential production of people. Because everything is now performance-based, it is necessary for the church to remind the world that there is intrinsic value in each and every person. Our Creator assigns it and the gospel proves it.

1. There is value in _____ people.
2. There is value in _____ gifts.
3. There is value in _____ service.

D.L. Moody said, "The world has yet to see what God can do with a man fully consecrated to Him. By God's help, I aim to be that man." Every generation has had its person who valued the significance of one. May our generation raise up an army of believers who understand that making disciples is the priority of Christ's mission, and that it occurs one gospel conversation at a time.
