

What Is the Gospel?
God the Righteous Creator
Hebrews 11:1-7

Our decisions and our outlook on life is going to be governed by how we choose to acknowledge God. Some people will choose to know Him and pursue Him. Some will only consider the possibility of such an entity without it having much impact. Still others will be hostile to the idea that such a being exists. Regardless of how you choose to live your life, and what you choose to believe, God is a reference point somewhere on the scale of your worldview.

A perfectly holy God, who has always existed, created a world that reflected His righteousness and perfect design.

1. The gospel presupposes a God who exists.
2. The gospel presupposes a God who creates.
3. The gospel presupposes a God who is holy.

Our righteous and holy Creator extends mercy and forgiveness to those who by faith trust Him for their salvation while at the same time, He executes justice towards those who maintain their wickedness and rebellion against Him. He is able to do both through the cross of Calvary. The good news that we share begins with a righteous Creator God who loves us enough to reveal Himself to us and then provides the mechanism by which we can know Him, faith in His only begotten Son.
